

SALEM PUBLIC LIBRARY FOUNDATION presents

SALEM READS:

ONE BOOK,  ONE COMMUNITY

This year Salem Reads features:

Outcasts United by Warren St. John

Read the Book. Discuss the Topics. Enjoy the Programs.

Outcasts United is the real-life story of a soccer team of refugees from all around the world seeking new lives in a small American town struggling to accommodate its new arrivals. Together, the inspiring group of teens, and a Jordanian woman with tough love and fiery determination, change an entire community for the better.

Our New Neighbors: Refugees in the City of Shalom

Since the end of 2015, Salem has welcomed refugees from nine different countries around the world. They have endured unimaginable hardships, fleeing their own homes and loved ones in search of a life free from war, persecution, and violence. Salem for Refugees, a network of community members, businesses, government organizations, non-profits, resettlement agencies, and faith communities, will share the experience of refugees as they find their way in our community.

Baby Kit Drive for New Refugee Families

Anyone attending the Refugee Panel Discussion is encouraged to consider donating necessary items for babies to be packed into transitional boxes for new refugee families. Brand new items accepted are:

- Diapers
- Baby Wipes
- Onesies
- Board Books

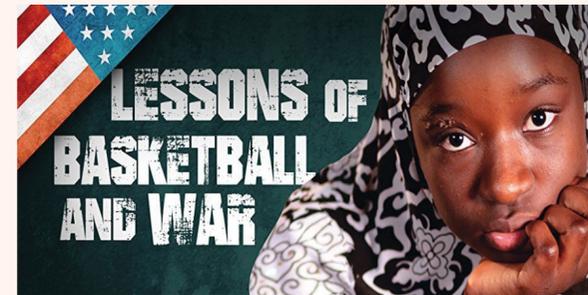

A complete list of items accepted will be shared online and in the library newsletter during February. The Baby Kit Drive will be organized by the Library's Teen Advisory Board, with donations going to Salem for Refugees. www.salemforrefugees.org

Warren St. John, author of Outcasts United will speak about the book. His research for Outcasts United led to an acclaimed series of front page stories in the The New York Times about the Fugees and the struggle of Clarkston to adapt to its new identity. See February 6 listing for ticket information. www.outcastsunited.com

» Book Summary

Outcasts United is the true story of a small U.S. town. In the span of just a decade, Clarkston, Georgia transformed from a typical small southern town into one of the nation's most diverse communities—a place where children from 50 countries attend the once all-white local high school. In Outcasts United, St. John explores the impact of this radical change on refugees and townspeople through the story of a Clarkston youth soccer team called the Fugees. The team, coached by a Jordanian-born woman named Luma Mufleh, consists of players from more than 15 war-torn countries, who, despite their differences and hurdles placed in their way by locals opposed to resettlement, find ways to connect and cohere across broad cultural divides.

» About the Author

Warren St. John has written for the New Yorker, Slate, Wired, and the New York Observer, in addition to his work in The New York Times. His research for Outcasts United led to an acclaimed series of front page stories in the The New York Times about the Fugees and the struggle of Clarkston to adapt to its new identity, and he has appeared on the Today Show, National Public Radio, MSNBC, CNN and other outlets to discuss his reporting on the town and team in his book.

» Salem Reads

Salem Reads: One Book, One Community is a community reads project that invites everyone in Salem to come together to read the same book, take part in discussions, and enjoy related programs throughout the month of February 2018. For our second season, we have chosen Outcasts United, a captivating and inspiring story about young people overcoming great odds. Outcasts United by Warren St. John explores the topics of war and peace, displacement, belonging, cultural awareness, youth in America, and how team spirit and hard work can make amazing things possible. Based on a true story, this book has the potential to bring together people from diverse generations, backgrounds and cultures around shared values.
